

Our society is characterised by a high consumption of addictive substances. The legal field includes nicotine, alcohol and medicines. In the illegal field, cannabis is the most popular drug among young people. But speed, cocaine and other substances are consumed by younger and older people as well.

Addiction and drug problems are found in all social classes and prevent people from handling their lives on their own. Addiction problems concern not only those affected, but also their family members.

In Wuppertal, all institutions and self-help groups providing assistance to people with an addiction work together as part of one network.

The addiction counselling centres in Wuppertal offer low-threshold open consultation sessions and/or first contacts by telephone. All services are free of charge.

Self-help groups are also an essential part of the assistance system. Those affected and their family members can find support and assistance here.

Should you or people from your social or professional environment need help and support, you will find the contact details of the addiction treatment services in Wuppertal in this flyer.

The services offered by the addiction treatment centres are in German and can be carried out with language mediators if required.
